The Presidential reception to-night was well attended by the élite and notabilities of the city; but compared with that of two weeks ago a falling off in numbers wa plainly discernible. The citizens of Washington city are not over much given to righteousness in the opinion of the balance of mankind, but it is indeputably true that few cities present more imposing formalism in righteous matters. Many grab-alls who scheme day and night to rob widows and orphans would be horrified at the idea of attending a party or reception during Lent. The concourse of citizens commenced assembling early in the evening, and early departures thunsed the mass in attendance by ten o'clock. Secretaries Denison, Harlam and Welles was averaged the greater portion of the evening and the attendance, representing all the bureaus in the c.ty. The evening passed away pleasantly to those present, and notifing was observable in word or deed to disturb the

Mr. Conness, (rep.) of Cal., was opposed to the appropriation of public money for any such purpose. He spoke of the inaccuracies with which, he said, the book was filled.

The resolution was adopted, yeas 22, nays 15.

COLORADO.

The bill for the admission of Colorado was then tak on up. The question pending was upon the following amendment, offered by Mr. Summer:—

Provided. That this act shall not take effect except with the fundamental condition that within the rists there shall be no denial of the elective franchise or any other right on agount of color or race; and all persons shall be equal before the law; and the inhabitants of the Territory shall by a majority of the voters at a meeting publicly convened by the Governor of the Territory, declare their assent to this fundamental condition; and the Governor shall transmit to the President of the United States an authentic statement of such assent whenever the same shall be given upon the receipt whereof he shall by proslamation announce the fact; whereupon, without any further proceedings in Congress, this set shall take effect.

Mr. Pourmor, (rep.) of Kansas, apoke briefly in favor receipt whereof he shall be proslamation amounce the fact; whereupon, without any further proceedings in Congress, this set shall take effect.

Mr. Pouragov, (rep.) of Kansas, apoke briefly in favor of the admission of Colorado.

Mr. Sausseux; (dem.) of Delaware, could not vote for the admission of a State with such a small population. He was very glad to see that when the question of negrossiffings was presented, out of a little over five thocand voters only four hundred and seventy-six were lumatics enough to be in favor of it.

Mr. Gannes opposed the bill. He spoke of the burdens of taxation which a State government would impose upon the people would vote against the proposition to impose this additional burden. He would for the admission of Colorado and the proposition to impose this additional burden. If he voted for the admission of Colorado to slay he would have to vote for the admission of Colorado to slay he would have to vote for the admission of Colorado that General Meagher was organizing a State government in Montana, and so of oaker Territories. He believed the old requirement that, before a State co-'ld be admitted her population should be equal to that required to elect a member of the House of Representatives, ought to be enforced, Mr. Hexpunces, idem.) of Ind., whiled to say a word for the sake of discataming any intention of voring against the bill from the same motives that induced Mr. Summer to oppose it. He would not vote against the admission of a State because of the adoption of negro suffrage, nor because of its rejection. He was opposed to the admission of Colorado because he did not believe the fifteen thous and people of Colorado should be entitled to the same right in the Senate as the thirteen hundred thousand people of Colorado should be entitled to the same right in the Senate as the thirteen hundred thousand people of Colorado because of the order of the proceedings attending the Florida were admitten without any enumeration of population. Florida was forced into the Union by the slave power to offset the admission of the free State of Iowa.

Mr. Gainess said the population of California was overninely-two thousand at the time of her admission. In the case of Florida it was understood at the time of her admission that she had population enough to elect a member of the Bouse. Had he been here when Kansas was admitted he might have voted for it without reference to population for the sake of settling the shwarzy agristion. There was no such reason to govern his vote now in the case of Colorado.

Mr. Laxg. resuming the floor, said he would vote for the admission of Colorado because the people bad signified their willingness to bear the responsibilities of a Blate government. Colorado bad as many people within her borders now as Kansas had when every republicant Senator voted for the admission of Kansas.

Mr. Wane, (rep.) of Ohio, said, though he reported the pending bill, he did so reluctantly, and he was not now in favor of k. When the enabling act was under consideration the Committee on Territories were informed hat the people were flocking to Colorado as they did to California a few years ago, and that soon there would be a very large population there.

Mr. McDounall, (dem.) of Cal., spoke of the limited knowledge there prevailed concerning the far West. The inness of the west were being developed more rapidly than Senators were aware of, and a Territory soon outgrows the requirements of a Tritorial government, and needed representation in Congress. He believed Colorado would be much better off as a State than as a Territory.

Mr. Tauwerll, (rep.) of Ill., said if this were a new question he might be apposed to the admission of Colorado had voted against the formation of a State government.

Mr. Persusurs, (rep.) of Mas, said the people of Colorado had voted against the formation of a State government under the enabling act; subsequently they voted for admission as a State.

on that ground, because the population was not great as when the enal-ling act was formed. He held that all the requirements of the cashing act had been compiled with.

Mr. Russen, (rep.) of Mass, said the population of Colorado had decreased since 1861. In 1861 there were ten thousand and upward of voters; in 1895 these were less than six thousand.

Mr. Doourrus, (rep.) of Wis, said he voted for the embling act in the belief that there were at that time from forty to fifty thousand people, and that by the time of the formation of the Fasie government there would be population enough to entitle them to a Ropresentative ta Congress. It would appear, however, that there were but twenty-five throusand people in the Territory when the enabling act was passed, and the population had since been decreasing. These facts forces themselves upon his mind the belief that it was his duty to vote against the admission of Colorado. It had been held that Congress was bound by the enabling act. He did not think so, because the people had once refused to adopt a State government under that act.

Mr. CRAIN, (rep.) of N. H., believed Congress, by the enabling act, was bound to receive Colorado. There was no discussion about population or any irregularity in the Committee on Territories when this bill was before it. He was fully persuaded there was a population of forty thousand in the Territory. He saw no reason now for not admitting the State that did not exist at the time of the passage of the enabling act.

Mr. Rassay, (rep.) of Sitni, maintained that the fallure of Congress to repeal the enabling act.

Mr. Rassay, (rep.) of Sitni, maintained that the fallure of Congress to repeal the enabling act was a standing invitation to them to form a state government. Besides, Colorado was a far distant State, and such a large population ought not to be demanded as of Territories neared to us.

Mr. Ginnus said the enabling act was not repealed, because it expired by its own limitations the moment the people had refused to adopt a State c
